Art Unit: 1765

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1 to 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as based on a disclosure which is not enabling. The claims do not recite using an oxygen source which is critical or essential to the practice of the invention, but not included in the claim(s) is not enabled by the disclosure. See In re Mayhew, 527 F.2d 1229, 188 USPQ 356 (CCPA 1976). The claims and the invention are drawn to the creation of oxide crystals. However, the claims do not recite nor state the use of oxygen source, which is stated in the specification. Oxygen is necessary for the formation of the oxide.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Art Unit: 1765

Claims 1 to 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yoshimura et al.

The Yoshimura et al reference teaches a method of producing a metal oxide crystal. Starting powders of the metal are mixed into an inert gas, like nitrogen. The resultant mixture is then fed to a reaction chamber by the way of a nozzle. Also, an oxygen source is fed to the same chamber. The two gases react and create the crystal oxide material, note, and entire reference. The sole difference between the instant claims the prior art is the conditions of the reactor. However, in the absence of unexpected results, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to determine through routine experimentations the optimum, operable reactor conditions such as fed rates and temperatures in the Yoshimura et al reference in order to insure proper conditions to create the oxide crystals.
